

We invite you to contribute to Kirwan's Race-Talk blog. We hope to facilitate critical and creative dialogue through the site, a space where individuals can explore and relate their personal experiences with issues of race, ethnicity, social hierarchy, marginalized populations, democratic principles, as well as other intersections of social justice. Throughout the year we will focus on specific issues for one-week each month. Below is our editorial calendar outlining when Race-Talk will focus on specific issues. While these are the times we will focus on these topics, you are free to discuss any issue or topic throughout the year.

If you are interested in becoming an author or contributor please contact, Jamaal Bell by email at, bell.875@osu.edu.

Dates	Editorial Focus	Potential Features
April 18-21	Government Protest	Civil unrest, Egypt, Middle East, implications of protest, practical solutions, open
May 16-19	Global Poverty	Civil unrest, food issues, women and children the face of poverty, poverty and war, poverty and exploitation, open
June 20-23	Race and Reproductive Rights	systemic issues affecting reproductive rights, the link of poverty and abortion, reproductive rights and policy, open
July 18-21	Global Violence Against Women	Indigenous populations, Native Americans, Sex trafficking, VAW in the Armed Forces, open
August 22-25	Education Issues	Race and higher education, urban school systems, curriculum, open
September 19-22	Immigration Rights	DreamAct, Labor trafficking, sex trafficking, uniting families

Other open topics: Sports and race, race and pop culture, social justice, race and economics, structural racism, international issues in race, education, and the media and race